CHECK TO KEEP CAR ON ROAD

MOTOR HELP

HALFORDS is helping to keep NHS workers on the road during the current crisis.

The car parts retailer is gearing up to help the front line medical staff by offering a free Ten Point Car Check, which would normally cost £15.

The inspection includes tyres, screen wash, oil levels, headlights and brake lights, and is aimed at keeping vital NHS workers moving at this critical time.

Graham Stapleton, Halfords CEO, said: "Now, more than ever, workers in the NHS need our help and support.

"Our research shows how vital their cars are in getting to and from work, so we want to do our bit to help the extraordinary healthcare workers who are doing an incredibly trying job at the most difficult of times."

To take advantage of the deal NHS front line workers simply need to show their NHS Staff ID card at a Halfords or Halfords Autocentre.

With strict restrictions in place to prevent people from leaving homes and gathering in groups, motorists with scheduled car maintenance might wonder if they can still have work carried out on their vehicles.

MOT tests, servicing, repairs, filling up with fuel and collecting motors just purchased will be top of the agenda for owners, especially those deemed critical workers who are relying on their cars.

This is Money explains what the Government has said so far and which services are impacted.

Halfords is offering all NHS frontline workers free 10 point car checks during the Coronavirus pandemic.

The check, available from today (Fri), includes top-ups of tyre inflation, screen wash and checks on oil levels, headlights and brake lights, to help keep vital NHS workers moving at this critical time.

A survey of more than 1,000 nurses over the past 24 hours revealed 72 per cent rely on their vehicles to get to and from work, while 25 per cent said their car suffers from a number of defects.

The service is available to all NHS frontline staff at most Halfords retail stores or Autocentres from today.

To redeem the offer, which would normally cost £15, NHS frontline workers will just need to show their NHS Staff ID card to any member of staff at Halfords or Halfords Autocentres.

Graham Stapleton, Halfords CEO, said: "Now more than ever workers in the NHS need our help and support

With strict restrictions in place to prevent people from leaving homes and gathering in groups, motorists with scheduled car maintenance might wonder if they can still have work carried out on their vehicles.

MOT tests, servicing, repairs, filling up with fuel and collecting motors just purchased will be top of the agenda for owners, especially those deemed critical workers who are relying on their cars.

This is Money explains what the Government has said so far and which services are impacted.

In these unprecedented times most of us should be heeding the Government's instructions to stay at home unless it is absolutely essential.

However, for those classed as key workers during the current crisis there is no choice but to continue travelling in order to provide essential services.

To help them stay mobile while doing their jobs a number of businesses have announced special offers, services and discounts for key workers, and NHS staff in particular.

Coronavirus COVID-19: Advice on buying, owning and running a car during the outbreak | No thanks

Coronavirus: Halfords offers free car checks for all NHS frontline workers

Published 20 March 2020

Halfords is offering a free 10-point car check, available from today wash and oil level, headlight and brake light inspections.

The service is available to all NHS frontline staff at most Halfords retail stores or Autocentres from today. The NHS is being pushed to breaking point as the number of Coronavirus cases in hospitals increases.

This follows news that letters are being sent to more than 65,000 retired doctors and nurses in the UK, asking them to return to the NHS to help tackle the outbreak. Key workers have also been told that their children

The services helping keep key workers mobile - from free parking to garage discounts

By Matt Allan

Thursday, 26th March 2020, 11:43 am
Updated Thursday, 26th March 2020, 2:55 pm

In these unprecedented times most of us should be heeding the Government's instructions to stay at home unless it is absolutely essential.

However, for those classed as key workers during the current crisis there is no choice but to continue travelling in order to provide essential services.

To help them stay mobile while doing their jobs a number of businesses have announced special offers, services and discounts for key workers, and NHS staff in particular.

Coronavirus: Off-licences added to list of 'essential' retailers

25.03.2020, 16:21, NEWS » World » World.Main 0

https://ichef.bbci.co.uk/news/320/cpsprodpb/029F/production/\_111417600\_wine.jpg
 width="976" height="549">

Off-licences have been added to the government's list of essential UK retailers allowed to stay open during the coronavirus pandemic. The list was updated on Wednesday amid increasing reports of supermarkets are selling out some beers and wines. The move came as bicycle and car parts retailer Halfords had to defend its decision to keep shops open. Boss Graham Stapleton said the chain had "an essential role to play in keeping the country moving". Halfords' Autocentre garages and mobile vans remain open, with plans for "partial store coverage" across its 446 shops.

Halfords drew criticism after it said it would keep some stores open after being named by the government as an "essential provider of services".

#BoycottHalfords was trending on social media on Tuesday. Some Twitter users cited concerns over a lack of protection for on-site workers while others, including MSP Fulton MacGregor, questioned whether the business should be open at all.

In these unprecedented times most of us should be heeding the Government's instructions to stay at home unless it is absolutely essential.

However, for those classed as key workers during the current crisis there is no choice but to continue travelling in order to provide essential services.

To help them stay mobile while doing their jobs a number of businesses have announced special offers, services and discounts for key workers, and NHS staff in particular.

With the situation changing daily, we can't be on top of all of them, but here are some of the latest offers around the country.

Free parking for NHS staff

The Government has announced that NHS staff and social workers in England will be able to park for free in hospital car parks and council-run car parks thanks to new funding and rules for local authorities. Hospital parking

HALFORDS OFFERS FREE CAR CHECKS TO NHS WORKERS DURING CORONAVIRUS PANDEMIC

Published by Andrew Bogie

20th March 2020

Halfords is offering its Ten Point Car Check to all NHS frontline workers during the Coronavirus pandemic. The check, for which Halfords normally charges £15, includes top-ups of tyre inflation, screen wash and checks on oil levels, headlights and brake lights.

A Halfords poll of 1,139 nurses in the last 24 hours found that 72 per cent rely on their vehicles to get to and from work, while 25 per cent said their car suffers from a number of defects.

Graham Stapleton, Halfords CEO says: "Now more than ever workers in the NHS need our help and support. Our research shows how vital their cars are in getting to and from work, so we want to do our bit and help the extraordinary healthcare workers who are doing an incredibly trying job at the most difficult of times."

To redeem the offer NHS frontline workers will just need to show their NHS Staff ID card to any colleague at a Halfords or Halfords Autocentres.

Halfords also offers motorists checks to their cars at home, which could be helpful to those recuperating or self-isolating because of COVID-19, through its Halfords Mobile Expert and Tyres On The Drive brands. The company is also making its mobile offer available as a contactless transaction.
