QUEEN'S Don't Stop Me Now, Stayin' Alive by the Bee Gees and Rick Astley's Never Gonna Give You Up are among the happiest ever songs, according to a survey.

But they all trail top of the pops feelgood tune of 1978 Mr Blue Sky by the Electric Light Orchestra.

A poll of 1,300 adults aged 30 to 55 revealed the tunes most likely to put you in a good mood.

Abba's Dancing Queen, Livin' On A Prayer by Bon Jovi and Katrina and the Waves' Walking On Sunshine were also in the top 10.

The poll, which was carried out by Greatest Hits Radio, showed the happiest songs were released in the late '70s, with Abba, Elton John and Chic all making the top 20.

ELO's Jeff Lynne said: "Thank you for voting for my song Mr Blue Sky as the song that makes you the happiest. I'm really chuffed about it, it's great. What a great thing. Thank you so much."

Some 58 per cent said songs that make them happiest were ones released during their youth.

Two songs from the hit 1978 film Grease feature in the list – You're The One That I Want at 15 and Summer Nights, 26.

Greatest Hits Radio's Pat Sharp said: "In these times of lockdown we need uplifting and upbeat music in our lives more than ever."

The study also saw The Boo Radleys hit Wake Up Boo, Ricky Martin's 1999 number one Livin'

Eighty-five per cent said their happiest year for music brought back memories of some of their "best days and life experiences".

Since lockdown began, 72 per cent of those surveyed have been listening to "a lot more" radio to help lift their mood. Behavioural scientist and broadcaster Paul McKenna said: "We associate the song with good times from the past. To some extent we get transported back there. We begin to create all the neuro chemical changes and all the happy neurotransmitters that are associated with a certain song that uplifts us."

by the Bee Gees' hit Stayin' Alive and Abba's Dancing Queen.

Other Top 10 songs include Bon Jovi's Livin' on a Prayer, Come on Eileen by Dexys Midnight Runners and Paul Simon's You Can Call Me AL.

The Proclaimers' 1988 hit I'm Gonna Be (500 Miles) is the only

Scottish song to make the chart. Researchers polled 1300 young and middle-aged adults for Greatest Hits Radio.

The survey showed the happiest songs were released in the late 70s - with Abba, Elton John and Chic all in the top 20.

More than half of those surveyed said the songs that make them happiest were released during their youth.

Greatest Hits Radio presenter Pat Sharp said: "It's great to hear that music is such a mood lifter. In these times of lockdown, we need uplifting and upbeat music in our lives more than ever."

Behavioural scientist Paul McKenna said: "We associate a happy song with good times from the past. Listening to happy songs we love is good for our health."

Clouds part when you listen to Mr Blue Sky

IF YOU'VE had the lockdown blues, trying listening to Electric Light Orchestra's Mr Blue Sky – crowned the happiest song ever.

Don't Stop Me Now by Queen, Stayin' Alive by The Bee Gees and Dancing Queen by Abba were close behind in the list of the most uplifting tunes, Greatest Hits Radio's poll of 1,300 found.

And it seems the old songs really are the best, as more than half of the 30- to 55-year-olds surveyed said their favourites are those that take them back to their youth. 'We need uplifting and upbeat music in our lives more than ever before,' said Pat Sharp, of Greatest Hits Radio.

I am with you, Matthew, what a weak insipid song. It reminds me. The survey found the happiest song themes comes from the 1970s, which is interesting but that particular song, or of a similar vintage, they have played it to death in the 1970s. -- a similar vintage. And with Coldplay, similar in the 90s. I hate Mr Blue Sky. I absolutely hate it. This _ Don't stop me now _ I'm having such a good time... _ That is good. What do you think of that Peta? I think we know which one Matthew did or didn't vote for. Don't Stop Me Now, I challenge anyone not to bust out a shape to that one in the kitchen. Would you have your own personal choice? Yeah. Not either of those. When it comes to a personal choice, maybe it'll be something niche which would probably have been like something like, like the last song at my wedding that probably wouldn't necessarily spark happiness with everyone but for me it would. This sharks happiness in ...

NEW YORK — Just about everyone has a song that instantly puts a smile on their face. Some tunes strike a person's happiness chord easier than others. A new survey says there's one song from the '70s that hits that note better than any other.

A poll of 1,300 adults ranging in age from 30 to 55 has crowned the Electric Light Orchestra's "Mr. Blue Sky" the happiest song ever. Despite dozens of other classics vying for the title, the 1978 hit was selected by a fifth of all respondents.

Mr Blue Sky Voted 'Happiest Song'

28 May 2020

Small British radio station, Greatest Hits Radio had an unexpected spotlight on the results of its listeners poll when it went viral yesterday. A fifth of all respondents voted that 'Mr Blue Sky' by ELO was the 'happiest song' ever. Beating Queen, Elton John, Abba, the Bee Gees and Bon Jovi to the top spot, the 1978 hit came out as the ultimate feel-good tune.

revealing his phenomenal career and The Traveling Wilburys, the official book of the band's adventures.

It was revealed 58 per cent of adults said songs that make them happiest are ones released during their youth.

Greatest Hits Radio presenter Pat Sharp said: 'It's great to hear that people are listening to the Radio more, and that music is such a mood lifter. Especially in these times of lockdown where we need uplifting and upbeat music in our lives more than ever before.'

Happy Music

Aw I always say music makes the world go round.....no matter what you're feeling.

That big breakup when we were younger. That first car with the windows open and that song you cranked up. When you're working out and need that pick me up. Or you're just reading and listening to background music.

Music is always something that just makes it all okay, that everything will be alright so I love this list as I think right now, we all need just some happiness and music can sure do that. Best part is we play a lot of these happy songs on the Jewel 😊 Just saying....

These Are The Top 50 Happiest Songs Ever Released

May 28, 2020 Bobby Bones 0 Comments

A poll of 1,300 adults aged 30 to 55 has revealed the 50 songs that are most likely to put you in a good mood. These songs are considered some of the happiest songs ever released.

The study was carried out by Greatest Hits Radio. A lot of the "happiest songs ever" were released in the late 70s with hits from Abba, Elton John, and CHIC all making the top 20.

Behavioral scientist and broadcaster Paul McKenna shared why certain songs make us happy.

"We associate the song to good times from the past. To some extent we get transported back there. [...] We begin to create all the neuro chemical changes, and all the happy neurotransmitters that are associated with a certain song that uplifts us, get released again. So, listening to happy songs that we love is very good for our health psychologically and physically."

Here are the Top 50 Happiest Songs:

1. Mr Blue Sky – Elo
2. Don't Stop Me Now – Queen
3. Stayin' Alive – Bee Gees
4. Dancing Queen – Abba
5. Livin' On a Prayer – Bon Jovi
6. Come on Eileen – Dexys Midnight Runners
7. You Can Call Me Al – Paul Simon
8. Walking on Sunshine – Katrina and the Waves

Queen's 'Don't Stop Me Now', 'Stayin' Alive' by the Bee Gees and Rick Astley's 'Never Gonna Give You Up' are among the happiest songs ever released.

A poll of 1,300 adults aged 30-55 has revealed the top 50 tunes most likely to put you in a good mood.

Electric Light Orchestra – aka ELO – took the crown with their 1978 hit 'Mr Blue Sky', with a fifth of all respondents selecting it as the ultimate feel good tune. Abba's 'Dancing Queen', Livin' on a Prayer' by Bon Jovi and 'Walking on Sunshine' by Katrina and the Waves also featured in the top 10.

The study, which was carried out by Greatest Hits Radio, showed the happiest songs were released in the late 70s, with Abba, Elton John and CHIC all making the top 20.

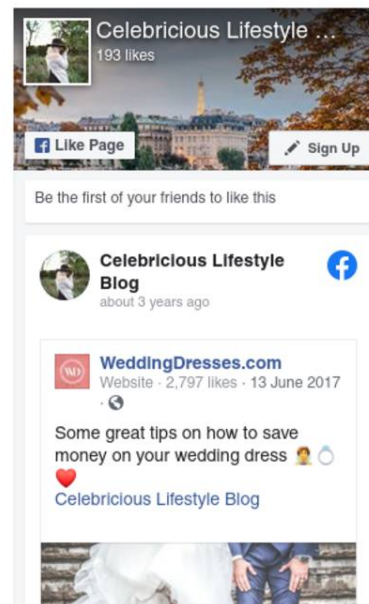

ELO's Jeff Lynne said: "Thank you for voting for my song Mr Blue Sky as the song that makes you the happiest. "I'm really chuffed about it, it's great. What a great thing.

NEW YORK — Just about everyone has a song that instantly puts a smile on their face. Some tunes strike a person's happiness chord easier than others. A new survey says there's one song from the '70s that hits that note better than any other.

A poll of 1,300 adults ranging in age from 30 to 55 has crowned the Electric Light Orchestra's "Mr. Blue Sky" the happiest song ever. Despite dozens of other classics vying for the title, the 1978 hit was selected by a fifth of all respondents.

"I'm really chuffed about it, it's great. What a great thing. Thank you so much," ELO co-founder and rocker Jeff Lynne said in a statement.

The survey, commissioned by Greatest Hits Radio, released the top 50 songs it says are most likely to put you in a good mood. Researchers add that 58 percent of adults say the songs which made them the happiest were the ones released in their youth.
