

72POINT.

Children with Cancer UK

Keeping families together

Touched by Cancer

23

PIECES OF COVERAGE:

382M

ONLINE READERSHIP:

522K

ESTIMATED COVERAGE VIEWS:

391

SOCIAL SHARES:

8

LINKS FROM COVERAGE:

45

AVERAGE DOMAIN AUTHORITY:

1.44M

DAILY READERSHIP:

72POINT.

Cancer's toll on our young

A FIFTH of adults have known a child who has suffered with cancer.

And more than one in 10 have known a youngster with leukaemia – the most common childhood cancer.

Cancer is the most common cause of death among children in the UK, claiming about 250 young lives each year.

Mark Bridger, of Children with Cancer UK, said: “Childhood cancers are very different to those found in adults. This makes research vital.”

The Mirror

SEP 13 2019

DAILY READERSHIP:

1.44M

72POINT.

STARK WARNING Every year 4,500 kids are told they have cancer – while 250 young lives are lost to disease

Sun Reporter
13 Sep 2019, 17:52 | Updated: 13 Sep 2019, 17:54

COMMENT NOW

EVERY year, around 4,500 kids are diagnosed with cancer - while 250 lose their young lives to the disease.

That's the stark warning from one leading charity, this Childhood Cancer Awareness Month.

Every year 4,500 kids are diagnosed with cancer, while 250 young lives are lost to the disease, a charity has warned Credit: Getty - Contributor

Mark Brider, acting CEO of Children with Cancer UK, said their aim is to highlight the impact cancer has on young people - and their families.

A new piece of research has shown one in five Brits know a child who has suffered the disease, while more than one in ten have known a child with leukaemia.

Brave Blue

One of them is Blue Tobin, who was just two when he was diagnosed with acute myeloid leukaemia (AML), a rare and aggressive blood cancer, with a one in four survival rate.

His family were warned he wouldn't make it, and mum Francesca said they faced "five years of hell".

But, thanks to the love and support of Blue's family, friends and medical team the youngster slowly started to regain his strength.

Now ten years old, Blue said: "It was painful and just destroys your body.

POPULAR ARTICLES

GROOM'S HEARTACHE Pregnant bride, 30, dies of stroke minutes from altar but docs save baby

EXCLUSIVE UP THE DUFF DUFF Ex-EastEnders star Melissa Suffield is pregnant with her first baby

THIRSTY Katie Price leaves flirty comment on Kris Boyson's Instagram during boozy night out

HUMDINGER Hurricane Humberto heading for BRITAIN with torrential rain and fierce winds

(EST.) MONTHLY VISITS: 124M

(EST.) COVERAGE VIEWS: 109K

DOMAIN AUTHORITY: 94

LINKS FROM COVERAGE: 1

1

1

'I was diagnosed with cancer aged two - it was so painful and destroyed my body'

Blue Tobin, now aged 10, was diagnosed with Acute Myeloid Leukaemia at the age of just two

SHARE f t i F e COMMENTS

By Grant Bailey
19:02, 13 SEP 2019 | UPDATED 19:24, 13 SEP 2019

NEWS

Blue Tobin was just two when his family was told he had cancer (Image: Kent Live WS)

Get the biggest Daily News stories by email

Enter your email

Subscribe

We will use your email address only for the purpose of sending you newsletters. Please see our Privacy Notice for details of your data protection rights

A study of 2,000 people has revealed that a fifth of British adults has known a child that has suffered with cancer.

10-year-old Blue Tobin tells the emotional story of fighting leukaemia, after being diagnosed at the age of just two.

Blue Tobin, was just two years old when he was diagnosed with Acute Myeloid Leukaemia (AML), a rare and aggressive blood cancer with a one in four survival rate.

RECOMMENDED

Mum's deathbed secret she told me minutes before her death tore my life apart

UK's first Down's syndrome couple to marry face devastating diagnosis

Homeless woman tortured and dangled from tower block balcony by 'coked up' men

Mum visits GP over 'fatigue' and is told she has just 72 hours to live

Full list of NHS prescriptions to be axed - see if your condition is included

PROMOTED STORIES

Four in Ten Drivers Believe...
LexisNexis Risk Solutions

(EST.) MONTHLY VISITS: 86.3M

(EST.) COVERAGE VIEWS: 87.7K

DOMAIN AUTHORITY: 93

LINKS FROM COVERAGE: 1

f 380

t 12

72POINT.

Home > News > UK

Childhood cancer – Fifth of adults know a child with the disease

A fifth of British adults has known a child that has suffered from cancer. A study of 2,000 adults revealed the extent to which childhood cancer has affected the population with 18 per cent knowing a youngster who has suffered the disease. And more than one in 10 have known someone to suffer from leukaemia – the most common form of childhood cancer.

PUBLISHED: 10:12, Fri, Sep 13, 2019 | UPDATED: 11:29, Fri, Sep 13, 2019

SHARE

Cancer is the most common cause of death among children in the UK (Image: Getty)

But despite cancer being the most common cause of death among children in the UK, more than 90 percent of respondents were unaware that approximately 250 little ones lose their lives to cancer each year. Mark Brider, the acting CEO of national charity Children with Cancer UK, marking Childhood Cancer Awareness Month, said: "Each year in the UK, about 4,500 children and young people are diagnosed with cancer, with approximately 250 sadly losing their lives to the disease. "Each September, Childhood Cancer Awareness Month helps to highlight the impact of cancer on young people and their families. "This, in turn, helps us to support more children, improve the lives of young cancer patients and their families and continue to fund lifesaving childhood cancer research in the hope that one day no child will die from the disease."

Most read in UK

- 1 EU's furious backlash at Bettel for damaging 'European cause' after hijacking Brexit talks
- 2 BBC's Kuenssberg stunned as Johnson hints how Britain WILL leave EU on October 31
- 3 Hard Brexit punishment: MEPs vote to block trade talks unless UK gives in to EU demands
- 4 Brexit breakthrough: EU finally compromises - Boris closes in on deal to scrap backstop
- 5 Millionaire Remainer Gina Miller begs for cash in bid to halt Boris Johnson's Brexit

(EST.) MONTHLY VISITS: 133M

(EST.) COVERAGE VIEWS: 135K

DOMAIN AUTHORITY: 93

LINKS FROM COVERAGE: 1

1

One in five Brit adults know child who's suffered from cancer

More than 10 adults have known someone to suffer with leukaemia - the most common form of cancer in children

SHARE

By Grant Bailey
16:32, 13 SEP 2019 | UPDATED 18:25, 13 SEP 2019

NEWS

Approximately 250 children lose their lives to cancer every year

A fifth of British adults has known a child that has suffered with cancer, a study has shown.

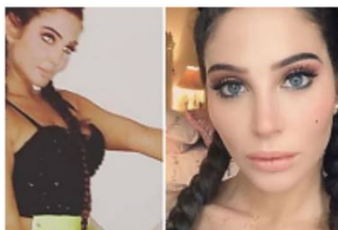

A study of 2,000 adults revealed the extent to which childhood cancer has affected the population with 18% knowing a youngster who has suffered the disease.

And more than one in 10 have known someone to suffer with leukaemia - the most common form of childhood cancer.

But despite cancer being the most common cause of death among children in the UK, more than 90% of respondents were unaware that approximately 250 little ones lose their lives to cancer each year.

Mark Brider, acting CEO of national charity Children with Cancer UK, marking Childhood Cancer Awareness Month, said: "Each year in the UK, about 4,500 children and young people are diagnosed with cancer, with approximately 250 sadly losing their lives to the disease.

MORE STORIES

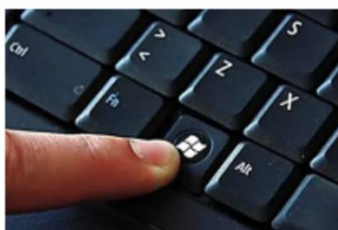

Tulisa 'feeling herself' as she ditches knickers in lace-up leather miniskirt

Great white shark attack leaves onlooker 'shaking' as water turns red with...
Emmerdale's Nate Robinson identity 'finally confirmed in pregnancy...

Model who spent £20,000 on body modifications gets devilish tattoo on...
Why Siemens permanently tries to hack its own...
Sponsored - (Sponsor...

Why Did No One Tell PC Owners About This Windows Trick?

(EST.) MONTHLY VISITS: 32.7M

(EST.) COVERAGE VIEWS: 42.3K

DOMAIN AUTHORITY: 91

1

STARK WARNING Every year 4,500 kids are told they have cancer – while 250 young lives are lost to disease

Sun Reporter
13 Sep 2019, 17:52 | Updated: 13 Sep 2019, 17:58

COMMENT NOW

EVERY year, around 4,500 kids are diagnosed with cancer - while 250 lose their young lives to the disease.

That's the stark warning from one leading charity, this Childhood Cancer Awareness Month.

Every year 4,500 kids are diagnosed with cancer, while 250 young lives are lost to the disease, a charity has warned Credit: Getty - Contributor

Mark Brider, acting CEO of Children with Cancer UK, said their aim is to highlight the impact cancer has on young people - and their families.

A new piece of research has shown one in five Brits know a child who has suffered the disease, while more than one in ten have known a child with leukaemia.

Brave Blue

One of them is Blue Tobin, who was just two when he was diagnosed with acute myeloid leukaemia (AML), a rare and aggressive blood cancer, with a one in four survival rate.

His family were warned he wouldn't make it, and mum Francesca said they faced "five years of hell".

But, thanks to the love and support of Blue's family, friends and medical team the youngster slowly started to regain his strength.

Now ten years old, Blue said: "It was painful and just destroys your body.

MOST POPULAR

LONELY RON Cristiano Ronaldo says he 'trusts only 4 people in the world' after rape claims

IT'S ME! Glasgow driver hailed for hilarious response after her parking was slagged off

'I SAW IT WITH MY OWN EYES' Gerrard heartbroken after seeing Ricksen suffer in final days

'I'M VERY UPSET' Celtic's Neil Lennon devastated by Rangers idol Fernando Ricksen's death

(EST.) MONTHLY VISITS: 4.62M

(EST.) COVERAGE VIEWS: 11.1K

DOMAIN AUTHORITY: 83

LINKS FROM COVERAGE: 1

Almost one in five Brits has known a child who has suffered with cancer.

Menafn

SEP 13 2019

Date
9/13/2019 8:16:04 AM

Like 13K Share

Tweet on Twitter

G+

in

(MENAFN - SWNS)

NEWS COPY.

Almost one in five Brits has known a child who has suffered with cancer.

A study of 2,000 UK adults has revealed the extent to which childhood cancer has affected the population with almost 18 per cent knowing a youngster who has suffered from the disease.

And more than one in 10 have known someone to suffer with leukaemia - the most common form of childhood cancer.

But despite cancer being the most common cause of death among children in the UK, more than 90 per cent of respondents were unaware that approximately 250 little ones lose their lives to cancer each year.

Mark Brider, acting CEO of national charity Children with Cancer UK, which commissioned the research to mark Childhood Cancer Awareness Month said: 'Each year in the UK, about 4,500 children and young people are diagnosed with cancer, with approximately 250 sadly losing their lives to the disease.

'Each September, Childhood Cancer Awareness Month helps to highlight the impact of cancer on young people and their families.

'This, in turn, helps us to support more children, improve the lives of young cancer patients and their families and continue to fund lifesaving childhood cancer research in the hope that one day no child will die from the disease.'

The study also found three in 10 adults are unaware of the long-term side effects of childhood cancer.

Fifty-six per cent did not know suffering from childhood cancer could lead to secondary cancer later in life while 54 per cent were unaware it could cause infertility later in life.

More than six in 10 (62 per cent) didn't realise growth impairment can be a result of suffering from cancer at a young age.

And 70 per cent didn't know that cancer treatment could cause behavioural issues.

(EST.) MONTHLY VISITS: 594K

(EST.) COVERAGE VIEWS: 2.18K

DOMAIN AUTHORITY: 74

72POINT.

'I was diagnosed with cancer aged two – it was so painful and destroyed my body'

@newsamed September 13, 2019 6:23 pm 0

A study of 2,000 people has revealed that a fifth of British adults has known a child that has suffered with cancer.

10-year-old Blue Tobin tells the emotional story of fighting leukaemia, after being diagnosed at the age of just two.

Blue Tobin, was just two years old when he was diagnosed with Acute Myeloid Leukaemia (AML), a rare and aggressive blood cancer with a one in four survival rate.

As a result of his AML, Blue missed a lot of schooling, and his family didn't think he'd make it.

POPULAR POSTS

EXPLORE ALL >

British man, 40, drowns while on stag party in Monaco

newsamed - Sep 14, 2019

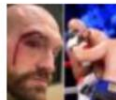

Camilla swimsuit photos: 'Disgusting and lurid' Berlusconi mag attacked over boat snaps

newsamed - Sep 12, 2019

Message to Millennials: Stop Buying French Castles

newsamed - Sep 13, 2019

Tyson Fury cut man reveals gash suffered during Otto Wallin win was worst he's ever seen

newsamed - Sep 16, 2019

(EST.) MONTHLY VISITS:

45.4K

(EST.) COVERAGE VIEWS:

3.23K

DOMAIN AUTHORITY:

42

Home > Health > Every year 4,500 kids are told they have cancer – while 250...

Health

Every year 4,500 kids are told they have cancer – while 250 young lives are lost to disease

September 13, 2019

EVERY year, around 4,500 kids are diagnosed with cancer – while 250 lose their young lives to the disease.

That's the stark warning from one leading charity, this Childhood Cancer Awareness Month.

Every year 4,500 kids are diagnosed with cancer, while 250 young lives are lost to the disease, a charity has warned

1

Every year 4,500 kids are diagnosed with cancer, while 250 young lives are lost to the disease, a charity has warnedCredit: Getty – Contributor
Mark Bridger, acting CEO of Children with Cancer UK, said their aim is to highlight the impact cancer has on young people – and their families.

A new piece of research has shown one in five Brits know a child who has suffered the disease, while more than one in ten have known a child with leukaemia.

Brave Blue

One of them is Blue Tobin, who was just two when he was diagnosed with acute myeloid leukaemia (AML), a rare and aggressive blood cancer, with a one in four survival rate.

His family were warned he wouldn't make it, and mum Francesca said they faced "five years of hell".

But, thanks to the love and support of Blue's family, friends and medical team the youngster slowly started to regain his strength.

Now ten years old, Blue said: "It was painful and just destroys your body.

"It was scary, but at the same time I felt like I had people beside me helping me fight off the cancer, and those people were my doctors, my nurses, my mum, my nan, my grandad and the rest of my family."

Blue was declared free of cancer at the age of seven, in May 2017 – something his mum describes as a "miracle".

Latest News

GM dumped health care for striking workers. That poured gas on fire, expert says

The Capital One Quicksilver card can help you save on big purchases—and everything else

Transportation Management System Market to 2025 – Oracle, 3Gtms, JDA Software Group, BluJay Solutions – NewsStoner

Handicapping the Q3 2019 Earnings Season – Zacks.com

World War II planes land at Plymouth Airport – Enterprise News

So Apple actually wants to trademark the iPhone 11's sloopie

A Warren Buffett protege is leaving to start her own Berkshire

Tech Execs Say They're Acting Faster on Extremist Content – U.S. News & World Report

Divi Helps Reduce Barriers to Entering the Cryptocurrency Ecosystem and Promote Earnings with One-Click Masternodes and a User-Friendly Interface – CardRates.com

Door Security – How to Make Your Doors Less Prone to Break Ins – Tech Times

1 in 4 UK homes use smart tech security systems – research – Telecompaper

Flu jab vaccine: How you could get a free vaccine?

Arctic shock: Polar explorers stunned by underwater discovery – 'Surprised the professors'

US Fed cuts interest rates for second time since 2008

Gold Slides After Fed Cuts Rates; Traders Seek Direction

Why Has Litecoin Fallen 50% Since June? – Forbes

(EST.) MONTHLY VISITS: 40K

(EST.) COVERAGE VIEWS: 3.49K

DOMAIN AUTHORITY: 40

LINKS FROM COVERAGE: 1

Business ▾

Healthcare ▾

Protection ▾

International

Wellbeing ▾

Reviews

Guides

Partners

Awards

A fifth of Brits have known a child with cancer

Many are unaware of the long-term side effects

Emily Perryman 16th September 2019

Almost one in five Brits have known a child who has suffered with cancer, a poll shows.

The study of 2,000 UK adults also found more than one in 10 have known someone to suffer with leukaemia, the most common form of childhood cancer.

But despite cancer being the most common cause of death among children in the UK, more than 90% of respondents were unaware that approximately 250 children lose their lives to cancer each year.

Mark Brider, acting chief executive of national charity Children with Cancer UK, which commissioned the research, said each September Childhood Cancer Awareness

(EST.) MONTHLY VISITS: 3.11K

(EST.) COVERAGE VIEWS: 346

DOMAIN AUTHORITY: 37

EUROPE BREAKING NEWS

Update latest Europe news

HOME ABOUT US CONTACT US DISCLAIMERS DMCA PRIVACY POLICY SUBMIT YOUR STORY

YOU ARE HERE: HOME / LATEST NEWS / ONE IN FIVE BRIT ADULTS KNOW CHILD WHO'S SUFFERED FROM CANCER

Search this website

One in five Brit adults know child who's suffered from cancer

🕒 SEPTEMBER 13, 2019 👤 DAILYSTAR 💬 LEAVE A COMMENT

A fifth of British adults has known a child that has suffered with cancer, a study has shown. A study of 2,000 adults revealed the extent to which childhood cancer has affected the population with 18% knowing a youngster who has suffered the disease. And more than one in 10 have known someone to suffer with leukaemia – the most common form of childhood cancer. But despite cancer being the most common cause of death among children in the UK, more than 90% of respondents were unaware that approximately 250 little ones lose their lives to cancer each year. Mark Brider, acting CEO of national charity Children with Cancer UK, marking Childhood Cancer Awareness Month, said: "Each year in the UK, about 4,500 children and young people are diagnosed with cancer, with approximately 250 sadly losing their lives to the disease. "Each September, Childhood Cancer Awareness Month helps to highlight the impact of cancer on young people and their families. "This, in turn, helps us to support more children, improve the lives of young cancer patients and their families and continue to fund lifesaving childhood cancer research in the hope that one day no child will die from the disease." The study also found three in 10 adults are unaware of the long-term side effects of childhood cancer. A total of 56% did not know suffering from childhood cancer could lead to secondary cancer later in life while 54% were unaware it could cause

CATEGORIES

and Business celebrity news Crime
Economy Eng English Entertainment Europe
Explainers Football Football News
France Health Heritage Instagram Irel
Irish News Jobs News Lifestyle Liverpool
News living Local News money Most popular Most Read Most Viewed
News news\_news North East News
Northern Irel Nostalgia Opinion Politics
sport stage Telegraph Transfer
News tvandshowbiz UK UK & World
News UK news Whats on World World
News

RECENT POSTS

Warning over 'loud bangs and

Europe Breaking News

SEP 13 2019

(EST.) MONTHLY VISITS: 101K

(EST.) COVERAGE VIEWS: 11.2K

DOMAIN AUTHORITY: 37

72POINT.

Home > News > 'I was diagnosed with cancer aged two – it was so painful...

News

'I was diagnosed with cancer aged two – it was so painful and destroyed my body'

By admin - September 13, 2019

A study of 2,000 people has revealed that a fifth of British adults has known a child that has suffered with cancer.

10-year-old Blue Tobin tells the emotional story of fighting leukaemia, after being diagnosed at the age of just two.

Blue Tobin, was just two years old when he was diagnosed with Acute Myeloid Leukaemia (AML), a rare and aggressive blood cancer with a one in four survival rate.

As a result of his AML, Blue missed a lot of schooling, and his family didn't think he'd make it.

He was deemed a "failure to thrive", meaning he wouldn't eat, failed to gain weight and was treated in isolation.

In our video of Blue's story, his mum, Francesca, reflects on five years of "absolute hell".

However, thanks to the love and support of Blue's family, friends, doctors, nurses, consultants and researchers, he slowly started to regain his strength.

Blue with his mum Francesca Waite (Image: PA)

Blue, now 10-years-old, said: "It was painful and just destroys your body.

"It was scary, but at the same time I felt like I had people beside me helping me fight off the cancer, and those people were my doctors, my nurses, my mum, my nan, my grandad and the rest of my family."

recent posts

Four Brits among 85 arrested in huge operation which seized five tonnes of hash

Duterte threatens 'war' over Canadian trash dump in Manila

More than 2,000 preserved fetuses found in house of dead abortion doctor

Father murdered baby daughter by throwing her because 'she wouldn't stop crying'

Sanders scores $18M in donations, but lags behind Buttigieg

most popular

Woman shares photo in knickers to show reality of 'mum tum' and how easy...

Shirley Ballas: Strictly judge suffers bra mishap in white sheer top on The One...

PSG's Real Madrid Champions League win shows Zinedine Zidane misses Cristiano Ronaldo

Mechanic who tampered with jetliner has ties to ISIS: feds

New mum jailed for lying about father of baby on birth certificate 'to spite...

(EST.) MONTHLY VISITS:

144K

(EST.) COVERAGE VIEWS:

16K

DOMAIN AUTHORITY:

37

Every year 4,500 kids are told they have cancer – while 250 young lives are lost to disease

amedpost September 13, 2019 4:52 pm 0

EVERY year, around 4,500 kids are diagnosed with cancer – while 250 lose their young lives to the disease.

That's the stark warning from one leading charity, this Childhood Cancer Awareness Month.

(EST.) MONTHLY VISITS: 113K

(EST.) COVERAGE VIEWS: 14.4K

DOMAIN AUTHORITY: 35

Home > health > Every year 4,500 kids are told they have cancer – while 250...

Health

Every year 4,500 kids are told they have cancer – while 250 young lives are lost to disease

September 13, 2019

EVERY year, around 4,500 kids are diagnosed with cancer – while 250 lose their young lives to the disease.

That's the stark warning from one leading charity, this Childhood Cancer Awareness Month.

Every year 4,500 kids are diagnosed with cancer, while 250 young lives are lost to the disease, a charity has warned

Every year 4,500 kids are diagnosed with cancer, while 250 young lives are lost to the disease, a charity has warned. Credit: Getty – Contributor
Mark Brider, acting CEO of Children with Cancer UK, said their aim is to highlight the impact cancer has on young people – and their families.

A new piece of research has shown one in five Brits know a child who has suffered the disease, while more than one in ten have known a child with leukaemia.

Brave Blue

One of them is Blue Tobin, who was just two when he was diagnosed with acute myeloid leukaemia (AML), a rare and aggressive blood cancer, with a one in four survival rate.

His family were warned he wouldn't make it, and mum Francesca said they faced "five years of hell".

But, thanks to the love and support of Blue's family, friends and medical team the youngster slowly started to regain his strength.

Now ten years old, Blue said: "It was painful and just destroys your body.

"It was scary, but at the same time I felt like I had people beside me helping me fight off the cancer, and those people were my doctors, my nurses, my mum, my nan, my grandad and the rest of my family."

Blue was declared free of cancer at the age of seven, in May 2017 – something his mum

Latest News

Human hearts evolved to be better at endurance tasks

Amy Childs reveals her boobs exploded leaving her with a lump during scary ordeal

Activist appeals to FG to revive Ajaokuta Steel Rolling Mill

Napoli vs Liverpool LIVE score: TV channel, team news and live stream details

Saudi oil attacks: Drones and missiles launched from Iran – US

Evil dad killed wife with sledgehammer then told his daughter's, 7 and 9, they were playing a game before choking them to death

Ronnie O'Sullivan has now won a title for 27 straight seasons and challenges his rivals to match him

London police and Facebook move to stop live streaming of terror attacks

Mercedes-Benz A250 Saloon AMG Line 2019 review

Molly-Mae Hague says she was the go-to hairdresser in the Love Island villa as she launches Beauty Works range

Peston reveals Boris could prorogue Parliament AGAIN if court rules suspension illegal

Borderlands 3 delivers solid performance on PS4 and Xbox One

Akwa Ibom Assembly reinstates suspended LG Chairman

Taylor Swift Announces Lover Fest Concerts--But There's a Catch

Ex-Trump aide Corey Lewandowski to testify before House committee – live

(EST.) MONTHLY VISITS: 56.7K

(EST.) COVERAGE VIEWS: 7.67K

DOMAIN AUTHORITY: 34

LINKS FROM COVERAGE: 1

CHILDHOOD CANCER - FIFTH OF ADULTS KNOW A CHILD WITH THE DISEASE

5 days ago

But despite cancer being the most common cause of death among children in the UK, more than 90 percent of respondents were unaware that approximately 250 little ones lose their lives to cancer each year. Mark Brider, the acting CEO of national charity Children with Cancer UK, marking Childhood Cancer Awareness Month, said: "Each year in the UK, about 4,500 children and young people are diagnosed with cancer, with approximately 250 sadly losing their lives to the disease. "Each September, Childhood Cancer Awareness Month helps to highlight the impact of cancer on young people and their families. "This, in turn, helps us to support more children, improve the lives of young cancer patients and their families and continue to fund lifesaving childhood cancer research in the hope that one day no child will die from the disease."

The study also found three in 10 adults are unaware of the long-term side effects of childhood cancer.

Fifty-six percent did not know suffering from childhood cancer could lead to secondary cancer later in life while 54 percent were unaware it could cause infertility later in life.

More than six in 10 (62 percent) didn't realise growth impairment can be a result of suffering from cancer at a young age.

And 70 percent didn't know that cancer treatment could cause behavioural issues.

Fifty-three percent were also unaware of the potential impact of childhood cancer treatment on the mental health and wellbeing of children.

Almost 30 percent of people surveyed in the research, conducted by OnePoll, also said they thought more than 10 per cent of cancer research funding would be

Search this website ...

Technology

Alienstock anxiety is settling in with some Rachel residents

Meet the Alienstock Bands Canceling Tours and Making Area 51 Raid Music to Play for Their Biggest Crowds Yet
 Area 51: What's Happening In The Desert?
 Call of Duty Mobile, Activision and Tencent's free-to-play FPS, launches on October 1st

Sports

Atletico Madrid vs Juventus live score and Champions League goal updates

Shakhtar vs Man City LIVE: Champions League latest updates
 PSG vs Real Madrid lineups: Confirmed team news and starting XIs
 Line-ups: Dinamo Zagreb v Atalanta | Football Italia

Business

Federal Reserve cuts interest rates a quarter point to counter Trump's trade war

(EST.) MONTHLY VISITS: 47.9K

(EST.) COVERAGE VIEWS: 6.87K

DOMAIN AUTHORITY: 33

entertain celebrity politics money health sports gaming fashion lifestyle tv more

Home > Health > Every year 4,500 kids are told they have cancer – while 250...

health

Every year 4,500 kids are told they have cancer – while 250 young lives are lost to disease

september 13, 2019

Facebook Twitter Pinterest LinkedIn Reddit Email Print Telegram

 Search

(EST.) MONTHLY VISITS: 240K

(EST.) COVERAGE VIEWS: 40.1K

DOMAIN AUTHORITY: 30

LINKS FROM COVERAGE: 1

Childhood cancer - Fifth of adults know a child with the disease

5 days ago

But despite cancer being the most common cause of death among children in the UK, more than 90 percent of respondents were unaware that approximately 250 little ones lose their lives to cancer each year. Mark Bridger, the acting CEO of national charity Children with Cancer UK, marking Childhood Cancer Awareness Month, said: "Each year in the UK, about 4,500 children and young people are diagnosed with cancer, with approximately 250 sadly losing their lives to the disease." Each September, Childhood Cancer Awareness Month helps to highlight the impact of cancer on young people and their families. "This, in turn, helps us to support more children, improve the lives of young cancer patients and their families and continue to fund lifesaving childhood cancer research in the hope that one day no child will die from the disease."

The study also found three in 10 adults are unaware of the long-term side effects of childhood cancer.

Fifty-six percent did not know suffering from childhood cancer could lead to secondary cancer later in life while 54 percent were unaware it could cause infertility later in life.

More than six in 10 (62 percent) didn't realise growth impairment can be a result of suffering from cancer at a young age.

And 70 percent didn't know that cancer treatment could cause behavioural issues.

Fifty-three percent were also unaware of the potential impact of childhood cancer treatment on the mental health and wellbeing of children.

Almost 30 percent of people surveyed in the research, conducted by OnePoll, also said they thought more than 10 per cent of cancer research funding would be allocated to childhood cancer research.

Technology

Alienstock anxiety is settling in with some Rachel residents

Meet the Alienstock Bands Canceling Tours and Making Area 51 Raid Music to Play for Their Biggest Crowds Yet

Area 51: What's Happening In The Desert? Call of Duty Mobile, Activision and Tencent's free-to-play FPS, launches on October 1st Google's broken smartwatch dreams 'Elvira's House of Horrors' pinball machine released by Stern

Sports

Atletico Madrid vs Juventus live score and Champions League goal updates

Shakhtar vs Man City LIVE: Champions League latest updates

PSG vs Real Madrid lineups: Confirmed team news and starting XIs Line-ups: Dinamo Zagreb v Atalanta | Football Italia Champions League: Olympiakos hit back to level against Spurs Guardiola picks midfielder at centre-back against Shakhtar amid defensive crisis

Business

Federal Reserve cuts interest rates a quarter point

(EST.) MONTHLY VISITS: 32.6K

(EST.) COVERAGE VIEWS: 5.73K

DOMAIN AUTHORITY: 29

Home > Health > Every year 4,500 kids are told they have cancer – while 250...

Health

Every year 4,500 kids are told they have cancer – while 250 young lives are lost to disease

September 13, 2019

EVERY year, around 4,500 kids are diagnosed with cancer – while 250 lose their young lives to the disease.

That's the stark warning from one leading charity, this Childhood Cancer Awareness Month.

 Search

RECENT POSTS

UPDATE 1-Lonely Norway raises interest rates, but less likely to do so again

Show Me the Money: Protecting Your Cryptocurrency Brand – Fin Tech – United States – Mondaq News Alerts

Telangana announces 28% profit share for Singareni workers

Warning as 100,000 people in US get cancer from chemicals in drinking water

Purdue Pharma seeks to halt opioid suits

National Security Group (NASDAQ:NSEC) Upgraded to "Buy" by ValuEngine – TechNewsObserver

Bank of England expected to leave rates on hold amid Brexit uncertainty – business live

Cristiano Ronaldo explains his gesture to Atletico Madrid fans during Champions League clash

Facebook expands Local News Accelerator to Australia with 11 publishers on board – mUmBRELLA*

(EST.) MONTHLY VISITS:	15K
(EST.) COVERAGE VIEWS:	2.87K
DOMAIN AUTHORITY:	27
LINKS FROM COVERAGE:	1

News

One in five Brit adults know child who's suffered from cancer

By floridapost - September 13, 2019

30 0

A fifth of British adults has known a child that has suffered with cancer, a study has shown.

A study of 2,000 adults revealed the extent to which childhood cancer has affected the population with 18% knowing a youngster who has suffered the disease.

And more than one in 10 have known someone to suffer with leukaemia – the most common form of childhood cancer.

But despite cancer being the most common cause of death among children in the UK, more than 90% of respondents were unaware that approximately 250 little ones lose their lives to cancer each year.

Mark Brider, acting CEO of national charity Children with Cancer UK, marking Childhood Cancer Awareness Month, said: "Each year in the UK, about 4,500 children and young people are diagnosed with cancer, with approximately 250 sadly losing their lives to the disease.

56% of people didn't know that cancer in childhood leads to an increased chance of re-contracting the illness later in life
 "Each September, Childhood Cancer Awareness Month helps to highlight the impact of cancer on young people and their families.

"This, in turn, helps us to support more children, improve the lives of young cancer patients and their families and continue to fund lifesaving childhood cancer research in the hope that one day no child will die from the disease."

The study also found three in 10 adults are unaware of the long-term side effects of childhood cancer.

A total of 56% did not know suffering from childhood cancer could lead to secondary cancer

get in touch

168 Fans	0 Followers	0 Followers
----------	-------------	-------------

recent posts

Sainsbury's is doing 10p a litre off fuel this weekend

Teenagers earning £30,000-a-year as professional gamers, MPs told

Tyson Fury vs Tom Schwarz tale of the tape: How do fighters compare ahead...

Holland vs England LIVE: Rashford puts Three Lions in front from penalty spot in...

Pollen count: One major trigger you may not know about – are you...

most popular

Polish people living in UK given Brexit letter from ambassador urging them to 'return...

Nine hikers found crushed to death in Russian mountains were 'killed by a yeti'

New evidence casts doubt on Sir Geoffrey Boycott's assault case, friends claim

FAA chief says he won't certify the Boeing 737 Max until he flies the...

Quality Street fans will be

(EST.) MONTHLY VISITS: 81.8K

(EST.) COVERAGE VIEWS: 16.3K

DOMAIN AUTHORITY: 26

Childhood cancer - Fifth of adults know a child with the disease

5 days ago

But despite cancer being the most common cause of death among children in the UK, more than 90 percent of respondents were unaware that approximately 250 little ones lose their lives to cancer each year. Mark Bridger, the acting CEO of national charity Children with Cancer UK, marking Childhood Cancer Awareness Month, said: "Each year in the UK, about 4,500 children and young people are diagnosed with cancer, with approximately 250 sadly losing their lives to the disease. "Each September, Childhood Cancer Awareness Month helps to highlight the impact of cancer on young people and their families. "This, in turn, helps us to support more children, improve the lives of young cancer patients and their families and continue to fund lifesaving childhood cancer research in the hope that one day no child will die from the disease."

The study also found three in 10 adults are unaware of the long-term side effects of childhood cancer.

Fifty-six percent did not know suffering from childhood cancer could lead to secondary cancer later in life while 54 percent were unaware it could cause infertility later in life.

More than six in 10 (62 percent) didn't realise growth impairment can be a result of suffering from cancer at a young age.

And 70 percent didn't know that cancer treatment could cause behavioural issues.

Fifty-three percent were also unaware of the potential impact of childhood cancer treatment on the mental health and wellbeing of children.

Almost 30 percent of people surveyed in the research, conducted by OnePoll, also said they thought more than 10 per cent of cancer research funding would be allocated to childhood cancer research.

Technology

Alienstock anxiety is settling in with some Rachel residents

Meet the Alienstock Bands Canceling Tours and Making Area 51 Raid Music to Play for Their Biggest Crowds Yet

Area 51: What's Happening In The Desert?

Call of Duty Mobile, Activision and Tencent's free-to-play FPS, launches on October 1st

Google's broken smartwatch dreams

'Elvira's House of Horrors' pinball machine released by Stern

Sports

Atletico Madrid vs Juventus live score and Champions League goal updates

Shakhtar vs Man City LIVE: Champions League latest updates

PSG vs Real Madrid lineups: Confirmed team news and starting XIs

Line-ups: Dinamo Zagreb v Atalanta | Football Italia

Champions League: Olympiakos hit back to level against Spurs

Guardiola picks midfielder at centre-back against Shakhtar amid defensive crisis

Business

Federal Reserve cuts interest rates a quarter point

(EST.) MONTHLY VISITS: 20.7K

(EST.) COVERAGE VIEWS: 4.14K

DOMAIN AUTHORITY: 26

Home > Food

Every year 4,500 kids are told they have cancer – while 250 young lives are lost to disease

timepost September 13, 2019 4:53 pm 0

EVERY year, around 4,500 kids are diagnosed with cancer – while 250 lose their young lives to the disease.

That's the stark warning from one leading charity, this Childhood Cancer Awareness Month.

Mechanic who tampered with jetliner has ties to ISIS: feds

The American Airlines mechanic who disabled a key navigation system on a jetliner leaving Miami — saying he did it over a labor dispute — ... Read More

NASA manager casts doubt on 2024 moon landing

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. — A top NASA manager cast doubt Wednesday on the space agency's ability to land astronauts on the moon by 2024. Kenneth ... Read More

Boris Johnson is given just 12 DAYS to spell out his Brexit plan or face No Deal as Macron sets ultimatum for end of month

EMMANUEL Macron today set Boris Johnson an 12-day deadline to table his Brexit plan – as Jean-Claude Juncker warned him time is running out to ... Read More

Atletico Madrid 2 Juventus 2 LIVE REACTION: Ronaldo and co pegged back after going two goals ahead

ATLETICO MADRID welcome Juventus in one of the most exciting fixtures in the Champions League group stages. The Spanish giants head into the game off ... Read More

(EST.) MONTHLY VISITS: 7.76K

(EST.) COVERAGE VIEWS: 2.23K

DOMAIN AUTHORITY: 15

Home » World News » One in five Brit adults know child who's suffered from cancer

One in five Brit adults know child who's suffered from cancer

September 13, 2019

A fifth of British adults has known a child that has suffered with cancer, a study has shown.

A study of 2,000 adults revealed the extent to which childhood cancer has affected the population with 18% knowing a youngster who has suffered the disease.

And more than one in 10 have known someone to suffer with leukaemia – the most common form of childhood cancer.

But despite cancer being the most common cause of death among children in the UK, more than 90% of respondents were unaware that approximately 250 little ones lose their lives to cancer each year.

Mark Brider, acting CEO of national charity Children with Cancer UK, marking Childhood Cancer Awareness Month, said: "Each year in the UK, about 4,500 children and young people are diagnosed with cancer, with approximately 250 sadly losing their lives to the disease.

EUROPE

3 dead as speedboat trying to set record crashes off Venice

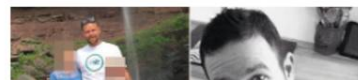

Brexit ultimatum: Macron demands Boris must deliver Brexit plan by Sept 30 or face no deal

'Undemocratic' Lib Dem quote Farage to justify their never ending fight on Brexit

WORLD NEWS

(EST.) MONTHLY VISITS:	1.41K
(EST.) COVERAGE VIEWS:	417
DOMAIN AUTHORITY:	14

ALL NEWS

STAY LIVE FOR ALL UPDATES

- Home
- Gossip
- International News
- Uk News
- Usa News
- Privacy Policy

Home / Usa News / Every year 4,500 kids are told they have cancer – while 250 young lives are lost to disease

Every year 4,500 kids are told they have cancer – while 250 young lives are lost to disease

- 5 Days Ago - In Usa News 4 0

EVERY year, around 4,500 kids are diagnosed with cancer – while 250 lose their young lives to the disease.

That's the stark warning from one leading charity, this Childhood Cancer Awareness Month.

Search ... Search

RECENT POSTS

- Polish people living in UK given Brexit letter from ambassador urging them to 'return to homeland'
- Strictly Come Dancing bosses insist on new eco-friendly rules including sharing taxis
- Towie's Olivia Attwood insists she's NOT a bully after being accused of 'abusive' behaviour by viewers
- Emmerdale fans terrified for Victoria Sugden as mystery man Luke returns
- Proud Joe Wicks posts picture of his 13 month old daughter doing 'pull ups' on the beach and amazes Body Coach fans

RECENT COMMENTS

A WordPress Commenter on Hello world!

ARCHIVES

- September 2019
- August 2019

CATEGORIES

- Gossip
- Uk News
- Uncategorized
- Usa News

META

- Log in
- Entries RSS
- Comments RSS
- WordPress.org

(EST.) MONTHLY VISITS:	Data not available
(EST.) COVERAGE VIEWS:	Data not available
DOMAIN AUTHORITY:	1

